

How & Where to Travel Safely During the Pandemic

Yes, you can travel safely now

The Covid-19 pandemic prevented us all from doing what we love – travel. As restrictions ease and borders reopen, you can travel safely with the right support and knowhow.

Rules and restrictions change on a weekly basis. The bureaucracy is confusing. It's difficult to know which destinations are safe and what you can experience when you get there.

Traveling is a passion, an escape, a connection to who we are. It creates many of our most extraordinary and unforgettable moments. Of course it hurts when this is taken away.

Regulations are important to keep the virus under control. Travel is different now. But at least there is still some opportunity to travel. We'll help you navigate through the uncertainty, so you and your loved ones can travel safely.

Where can you travel?

So what country is open now? What hotels are safely welcoming guests? What famous destinations can be experienced without their usual crowds? And most importantly, how can you stay safe when you travel during these times?

This travel guide will give you an overview of destinations that have reopened, with a peak into incredible moments, hotels and experiences that are possible right now.

Use this guide as inspiration. And when you're ready to travel Kated will connect you to a local travel designer, a specialist who can arrange every aspect of your trip.

How can you travel safely?

Your travel experience is always based on so many factors. It is even more sensitive and personal during the pandemic.

A travel agent can book you a trip to anywhere in the world, but only local travel designers really understand a changing situation on the ground.

Travel designers have local specialism and expertise. They arrange all the details that keep you safe, such as private activities and transfers, pre-vetted hotels, PCR tests, and itineraries based on local restrictions and opportunities.

Disruptions and restrictions will be common for many months to come. By using the local knowledge of leading travel professionals your travel can be safe and extraordinary.
